FEATURE STORY OF THE MONTH:

LOVING WHISPERS OF PROTECTION

If you have ever wondered whether our deceased loved ones continue to watch over us, you might find the following story to be very interesting:

Heart heavy and tears flowing nonstop, Jill, frantically* called her good friend, Tina*. Jill's friend, Tom,* had just had a heart attack and had been rushed to the hospital. Jill needed Tina to run her flower shop so that she could be with Tom at the hospital. Tina, who often worked with Jill in her charming Victorian shop in town, was there in just moments after receiving the call for help. Following several hours of arranging flowers and serving the needs of store patrons, Tina went off to church to both sing in the choir and to pray.

Tina, who also happened to know Jill's friend, Tom, wanted to offer prayers for him. It was while she was in the middle of praying for those in need of healing that Tina suddenly heard a strong, warm voice that seemed to come from nowhere. "Take care of her," were the words she clearly heard. Though she quickly turned to see from where these words came, she saw no one and immediately knew the voice was definitely Tom's. She also realized that this meant that Tom had died. Stunned, Tina looked at her watch, noting the time: 7:45 p.m. With feelings of sadness and loss, Tina returned to her prayers, praying for Tom's soul, rather than for his healing.

Arriving home absolutely exhausted, Tina, worried about her friend, called Jill to see how she was doing. Tina then shared her precious story about Tom with Jill, who was, of course, also extremely tired and drained, both emotionally and physically. What was really neat was Jill's response. Though very upset from having lost her good friend, Jill gulped and filled with tears as she heard Tina's story because she, too, had noted that Tom had died at 7:45 p.m.! Evidently, Tom, knowing that he could no longer be physically available to watch over his friend, had not wasted even a second, to seek out

Tina and convey his loving concern and request for Jill. This expression of heartfelt love deeply moved and touched Jill.

Know that if your loved ones watched over you while alive – or in physical form- they appear to find ways to continue to do the same when they are no longer physically here. Touched by the Extraordinary is filled with stories, like this, that validate for you the power of love and that we continue to be cared for by our loved ones.
